

Preparing for Your Qualifying Exam:

Strategies for Success in any Department

Monday, November 16, 2009

Noon-2:00 pm

Cabernet Room, Silo

For many graduate students the qualifying exam is one of the most uncertain, stressful, and time consuming aspects of their graduate education.

Although the content and structure of qualifying examinations varies widely by discipline, this workshop focuses on universal "strategies for success" that will be valuable to graduate students in all departments. Dr. Louis Grivetti will present a one hour lecture followed by one hour of examples and questions. No registration is necessary.

Visit <http://gradstudies.ucdavis.edu/pds/> or contact Teresa Dillinger tdillinger@ucdavis.edu for more information.

Sponsored by the Office of Graduate Studies (Professional Development Series)

UCDAVIS